Caverion partners with ClimaCheck – innovative technology ensures energy efficiency of refrigeration systems

Caverion launches an international partnership with clean-tech company ClimaCheck. Caverion's existing refrigeration automation solution will utilise ClimaCheck's cloud technology to analyse data and to improve energy efficiency for Caverion's customers.

Caverion's refrigeration automation is already being used, for example, in dozens of retail stores, warehouses and logistic centres around the Nordics. "Saving energy and making energy-wise decisions is a key priority for all our customers. With the help of ClimaCheck, we can offer our customers verified, detailed analysis and fact-based advice for optimal performance of the refrigeration equipment. We see great opportunities in this partnership, which will help to create sustainable impacts for our customers," says Kari Sundbäck, Head of Services, Solutions, Digital and Sustainability at Caverion.

ClimaCheck's solution will also measure efficiencies and the coefficient of performance (COP) for the refrigerator system. Customers can utilise these "ClimaCheck verified" analysis results to guide their decision making and to reach energy savings and their climate goals.

"ClimaCheck analyses the data gathered by Caverion's automation technology to perform the verification without requiring additional components or site visits. Caverion is our first partner who can deliver the integrated cloud-based automation solution as well as complete energy performance services to ensure the optimal functioning of the refrigeration equipment during its lifespan," says Niklas Berglöf, CEO, ClimaCheck.
